WELCOME FROM THE AAMR PRESIDENT

AAMR

Welcome to AAMR's 128th Annual Meeting in the historic city of Philadelphia. Can you imagine what the agenda of AAMR's first meeting must have been 128 years ago? What will AAMR be contemplating 128 years from now—in the year 2232? Clearly, our field has made incredible progress, but we “have miles to go.” The purpose of this meeting is to keep moving forward in a progressive direction.

The Board of Directors has given careful attention this year to AAMR's strategic plan and to its three primary niche goals:

- Promoting the use of AAMR's widely-accepted definition of mental retardation
- Advancing the supports paradigm
- Advancing physical, emotional, spiritual, and environmental health for the benefit of individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities

This year's program focuses primarily on our health priority, and continues to promote the Community Health Supports Model which provides supports to individuals in managing limitations, performing priority activities, and participating in valued relationships within their communities of choice. I especially want to extend my heartfelt gratitude to Dr. David Coulter, President-Elect, for planning the conference. David has done a very commendable job of organizing a coherent and comprehensive program focusing on the four domains of optimal health.

In addition to the substantive and stimulating sessions, you will have the chance to meet new people and expand your own professional and personal networks. I encourage you to “get out of your safety zone of familiarity” and meet new people and learn about their professional experiences and personal perspectives. Just as we seek to create inclusive communities for individuals with disabilities, I hope that we will similarly commit to creating inclusive communities within AAMR where we have opportunities to expand our horizons through personal relationships.

I hope very much that I will have a chance to visit with you during the conference. Please let me know if I can do anything to enhance the quality of this conference experience for you. Thank you for participating in AAMR and especially thank you for enhancing the likelihood that individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities and their families will have personally satisfying lives.

WELCOME FROM THE LOCAL ARRANGEMENTS COMMITTEE

Welcome to Philadelphia where the blend of history and modern innovation is foremost. Philadelphia is the birthplace of the United States of America and the host of the Independence National Historical Park. The City welcomes all visitors from all nations to share our history and charm. In it's most historic mile, you can visit Independence Hall, the Liberty Bell and the newly opened National Constitution Center. Additional sites include Christ Church, "the Nation's Church," Elfreth's Alley, and the celebrated Philadelphia Zoo. The Philadelphia Museum of Art, majestically located at the river-end of the Benjamin Franklin Parkway, encourages many visitors to run up the famous steps climbed by Sylvester Stallone in Rocky. In addition Philadelphia is a culinary attraction with hundreds of exciting restaurants—many within walking distance of the Marriott Hotel. World-renowned Chefs Morimoto, Bobby Flay and Jacques Pepin can all be found in Philadelphia. The exciting areas of Chinatown, South Street, Olde City, the Italian Market, Reading Terminal and historic Manyunk offer many artistic, ethnic and unique shops, restaurants and attractions.

The Local Arrangement Committee members Albert Brown, Celia Feinstein, Dina McFalls, Grace Dempster, Karen Claiborne Pride, Kathy Brown McHale, Kathy Miller, Kathy Sykes, Melissa Evers, Robin Levine, Sharon Kauffman, and Paul Spangler have worked very hard to make this a memorable visit to the city.

We invite you to enjoy the conference and our wonderful host city of "Brotherly Love" and use this opportunity to re-acquaint yourselves with old colleagues as well as make new ones who are interested in advancing the mission of AAMR.

Yours truly,

Terrence McNelis

Local Activities Committee Chairperson

WELCOME FROM THE AAMR PRESIDENT-ELECT AND PROGRAM CHAIR

Health represents the composite of physical, mental, social and spiritual wellbeing.

Welcome to AAMR's 128th Annual Meeting and Exhibit Show! This conference was designed to explore the broad meaning of health for persons with intellectual disabilities. Health represents the composite of physical, mental, social and spiritual wellbeing. Health is not the absence of disability, and disability is part of the human condition. In this sense, all of us are more or less healthy, and all of us aspire to optimal health in these four areas. The challenge we face as professionals is how to promote and assure optimal health for all persons with intellectual disabilities. The Community Health Supports model, which is based on the World Health Organization's models of health and functioning, provides a way to address this challenge. This new approach envisions health activities that promote wellbeing by helping the individual manage personal impairments in order to perform self-chosen activities that promote participation in desired social roles within the community of choice. Health activities include medical, behavioral, therapeutic, social and spiritual supports, as well as provision of needed environmental adaptations and technological assistance.

During these next few days you will participate in an exceptionally vigorous, diverse, field-initiated, and peer-reviewed discussions of health and intellectual disability.

- Plenary Sessions present key topics in spiritual, physical, mental, and environmental health.
- Special Theme Sessions expand on these areas of health with presentations that explore what is being done around the country to address the challenges we face.
- Interactive Sessions provide an opportunity to meet and interact with speakers who are working to realize the vision of Community Health Supports.
- Emerging Issues Sessions present a number of critical issues we will face in the coming years.

So dig deep in this rich mine of knowledge, engage the presenters in discussion, think hard about what you have learned, and determine how you can improve the health of persons with intellectual disabilities. Enjoy your time here in Philadelphia. Meet and make friends, establish new contacts, and leave with the skills you need for the future. Join us in AAMR as we face these challenges together. Your participation is essential for our success. Thank you for coming and being a part of this stimulating program.

David L. Coulter, MD
Program Chair and President-Elect

Don't Miss These Exciting Sessions!

Attend these exciting workshops and satellite programs for the opportunity to gain more in-depth knowledge about critical areas of health.

NEW!

Emerging Issues—A new session track on Emerging Issues explores the topics that will be confronting the field in the future.

NEW!

Direct Support & Advocacy Track—A new session track especially geared to Direct Support Staff and Self-Advocates is offered for the first time ever!

NEW!

Supports Intensity Scale Workshop—Hear the authors introduce this revolutionary new standardized assessment tool that measures the individualized support needs of people with cognitive disabilities. This distinguished team will teach you how to use SIS to evaluate support needs, develop plans to address support needs, and monitor outcomes.

NEW!

PBSTC Workshop—A special professional workshop on how to implement the new Positive Behavior Support Training Curriculum for supervisors and direct support staff will tell you everything you need to know about this exciting new turn-key curriculum (curriculum, overheads, tests, role playing, on-the-job-training assessments, etc.).

NEW!

Special Symposium on Health—Come hear experts discuss scientific evidence about people with intellectual disabilities and physical activity, mobility, nutrition, hypertension, risk assessment, safety, reproductive health, and health care access, etc., in this all-day symposium.

NEW!

Plenary Session on Environmental Health—This new session on Pollution, Toxic Chemicals, Disability, and Our Health explores the exciting new research and policy developments in exploring how environmental contaminants may cause or impact people with developmental disabilities.

They Fought for the Life of Earl Washington, Jr. and Won—Hear the lawyers and advocates tell how they freed a man from death row—and hear Earl Washington, Jr.'s impressions of the ordeal.

Plenary Session on Mental Health—Four national experts discuss the state of Alzheimer's Disease in adults with Down Syndrome at this mental health plenary.

Plenary Session on Spiritual Health—Rev. Bill Gaventa will discuss the role of spirituality in holistic care in this Opening Session.

Plenary Session on Physical Health—Hear the conclusions from the all-day special symposium on health.

Emerging Technologies and State of the States—Take a look at state funding, emerging technologies, and barriers to using technologies.

Professional Workshops—Attend one of the many morning and afternoon Professional Workshops to find out the latest from those who conduct the research, make the policy, and deliver the services. Workshops include Promoting Good Health, Working for a Living, Leadership, and Transitioning.

NADD/AAMR Symposia—When NADD and AAMR team up, the results are impressive. Don't miss these two symposia on Criminal Offenders Risk Assessment and Treatment Options, and Critical Issues in Psychotropic Agents.

This all day national conference addresses the state of the scientific evidence on health promotion as it relates to persons with intellectual and developmental disabilities (I/DD). The topics to be presented include physical activity and mobility, obesity and overweight/nutrition, access to health care, hypertension, alternative and complementary medicine, case management/care coordination, mental health, health risk assessment tools, epilepsy, safety/injury and violence, reproductive health, respiratory health, tobacco use/substance abuse, and conceptual health promotion models. For each topic, nationally recognized speakers will present the current scientific evidence and make recommendations for future research and health care practice. With this conference, AAMR takes the next step in addressing some of the concerns and recommendations made in the Surgeon General's report, "Closing the Gap" (2002).

Bill Gaventa

A Place for All of Me and All of Us: Rekindling the Spirit in Services and Supports

Bill Gaventa, MDiv, Director, Community and Congregational Supports, The Elizabeth M. Boggs Center on Developmental Disabilities, Department of Pediatrics, Robert Wood Johnson Medical School, University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey

The role of spirituality in holistic care is receiving increasing attention in healthcare as scientific researchers and clinicians in many disciplines work with pastoral caregivers, religious communities, alternative medicines and therapies, and culturally competent supports—all of which tap the power of spirituality to impact health and healing. How might that research and practice enhance services and supports for people with developmental disabilities and their families? What are the implications for professional caregivers, providers, advocates, families, and communities?

Alzheimer’s Disease (AD) in Adults With Down Syndrome

Wayne Silverman

Wayne Silverman, PhD, NYS Institute for Basic Research; Warren Zigman, PhD, NYS Institute for Basic Research; Nicole Schupf Taub, PhD, Institute of Columbia University, Taub Institute of Columbia University; Tiina Urv, PhD, Shriver Center, University of Massachusetts Medical School

AD in Adults With Down Syndrome: Homeostatic Risk Factors
Biomarkers of Risk for AD in Adults With Down Syndrome
Patterns of Maladaptive Behavior in Adults With Down Syndrome and Dementia
Variation in Rates of Progression of AD in Adults With Down Syndrome

Warren Zigman

Virtually all adults with Down syndrome develop some of the key neuropathological features of Alzheimer’s disease by their late 30s, yet only a minority experience frank dementia. Even among those affected individuals, age at onset (or age at diagnosis) varies widely, as does rate of progression. Obviously, factors in addition to the presence of an extra copy of chromosome 21 (the underlying cause of Down syndrome) and its associated triplication of the gene coding for amyloid precursor protein must be responsible for these individual differences. Four presentations will describe the results of our current research, focusing on selected aspects of clinical progression of Alzheimer’s disease and biological factors that modify individual risk.

PLENARY SESSION ON ENVIRONMENTAL HEALTH

1:15 pm– 2:30 pm

Pollution, Toxic Chemicals, Disability, and Our Health

There is widespread concern about the increasing amounts of chemicals and pollutants in our environment and the impact they may be having on our overall health and quality of life. Mothers-to-be, infants and young children are especially vulnerable, while there is a growing suspicion that adults with developmental disabilities may be at unnecessary risk in their homes and in the workplace because of the lack of information and education about these health promotion and disability prevention issues. The results of the national Wingspread Conference on toxicants and developmental disabilities will be reviewed including what the research shows, what we suspect, and what we can do to improve the quality of our environment and that of the disability service system.

Why Should We Be Concerned About Environmental Health? What Can We Do as Advocates, Parents, Researchers, Service Providers, and Policy-makers?

What Do Surveys Tell Us About the Health and Well-Being of Adults With Dual Diagnosis Compared to Individuals With Developmental Disabilities Who Do Not Have Psychiatric Disabilities?

Introduction: Overview of National Core Indicators

Valerie Bradley, MA, Human Services Research Institute

How Do Health Outcomes Compare in Adults With Developmental Disabilities With and Without Mental Health Problems?

Susan Havercamp, PhD; Karen Luken, TRS/CTRS

Adults with dual diagnoses present unique challenges to the DD service system as well as to the community healthcare system. Research demonstrates that individuals with MR receive little medical care, compared with the general population.

Health, Social, and Emotional Well-Being of Adults With Intellectual and Psychiatric Disabilities

Ruth Freedman, PhD, Boston University; Sarah Taub, Human Services Research Institute

National Core Indicators (NCI), sponsored by the National Association of State Directors of Developmental Disabilities Services (NASDDDS) and the Human Services Research Institute (HSRI), is a national effort aimed at supporting state DD authorities to develop performance/outcome indicators and to implement data collection strategies for measuring service delivery system performance. This presentation examines the first round of data from Fiscal Year 2002-2003.

Age, Gender and Disability Type Differences in Service Use and Needs for Adults: Analyses From the National Health Interview Survey on Disability

Sheryl Larson, PhD, University of Minnesota

This presentation describes personal supports and health, mental health, long-term care, transportation, and preventative health services needed or used by adults in the NHIS-D. It uses logistic regression to examine differences by age (18 to 35 years versus 36 years and older), gender, and disability group (persons with intellectual or developmental disabilities versus others with one or more functional limitations) while controlling for overall health status, race and economic status.

NADD/AAMR SYMPOSIUM I

9:00 am–12:30 pm

Criminal Offenders: Assessment of Risk and Treatment Options

Edwin J. Mikkelsen, MD, Associate Professor of Psychiatry, Harvard Medical School, Medical Director, The MENTOR Network; Ms. Kate Novak, Director of Quality Assurance, The MENTOR Network; Jennifer B. Fuglestad, Quality Assurance Analyst, The MENTOR Network; Michael Pasinski, MSW, Director of Clinical Services, REM Connecticut Community Services; Robin Keller, BSW, Executive Director, REM Connecticut Community Services

The symposium examines studies of clinically meaningful subtypes of individuals with developmental disabilities who have a history of criminal offenses in three groups: a) those who commit sexual offenses only, b) those who commit physical offenses only, and c) those who commit sexual and physical offenses.

It also discusses contemporary ongoing research supporting this classification, operational and treatment issues by individuals who are actively involved in the management of a community-based program, and concludes with a panel discussion and questions from attendees.

Participants will be able to identify different subtypes of criminal offenders with mental retardation, acquire skills to construct a treatment plan based on historical risk factors, and develop the skills to construct a risk assessment profile.

This three-hour pre-conference symposium consists of two sections, with a short break in the middle.

COST: $79—AAMR/NADD members; $99—Non-members

Room: Salon B

NADD/AAMR SYMPOSIUM II

1:30 pm–5:00 pm

Psychotropic Agents: Critical Issues

Leo McKenna, PharPharmD, Clinical Pharmacist, McKesson Medication Management, Massachusetts Department of Mental Retardation; Edwin J. Mikkelsen, MD, Associate Professor of Psychiatry, Harvard Medical School, Medical Director, The MENTOR Network; Kate Novak, Director of Quality Assurance, The MENTOR Network; Jennifer B. Fuglestad, Quality Assurance Analyst, The MENTOR Network

This symposium consists of three sections. “The Construction of Pharmacological Algorithms” reviews the decision-making process in choosing a particular psychotropic medication, including the ability to clearly establish a psychiatric diagnosis. Factors discussed include: a) the severity and frequency of the behavioral symptoms produced by the psychiatric disorder, b) the side effect profile of the proposed medication, c) the probability of effectiveness. A diagnostic-specific pharmacological algorithm for the more common psychiatric disorders encountered in people with dual diagnosis will then be discussed.

“The Evolution of Knowledge With Regard to the Side Effect Profile of Newer Psychotropic Agents” focuses on the recognition of side effects of psychotropic agents frequently used in individuals with dual diagnosis.

“Strategies for the Reduction of Medication Errors in Community Programs” reviews the most common types of medication errors and strategies for preventing them. Educational materials will be distributed. This symposium concludes with a panel discussion and questions from attendees.

Attendees will be able to recognize the most common side effects of the atypical antipsychotic agents, identify the most significant side effects of the SSRI antidepressants, and identify the most common subtypes of medication administration errors and strategies for preventing them.

COST: $79—AAMR or NADD members; $99—Non-members

MORNING WORKSHOPS

8:00 am–12:00 noon

#1 An Overview of Social Role Valorization

Wolf Wolfensberger, PhD; Jo Massarelli

Social Role Valorization posits that people who are devalued by others are likely to be treated better if they are seen as holding positively valued social roles. This workshop will explain the “wounds” that typically get inflicted on people of low intellect, and the power of valued roles to address these. Competency enhancement and image enhancement as main avenues towards valued roles, and suggest an implementations sequence of role-valorizaing measures will also be discussed.

Room: 414

9:00 am–12:00 noon

#2 Evidence-Based Practices in Education

Susan Palmer, PhD, Susan Copeland, PhD, Michael Wehmeyer, PhD, Jim Thompson, PhD

Members of the Education Division will present applications derived from research-based projects and applications that can be used to educate students with disabilities. A number of educators will be on hand to discuss the very practical outcomes and methods that are the products of evidence-based research. A discussion of evidence-based practice and the implications for students with intellectual disabilities will also be held.

Room: 401

9:00 am–12:00 noon

#3 Exceptional Staff and a Focus on Wholistic Health: One Person’s Journey to a Quality of Life

John Sauer MSW, MEd; Nathan Perry; Amy Hewitt, PhD

The current transition from provider-driven services in the community to consumer-directed community supports has provided many individuals with disabilities, their families, and support networks to focus on recruiting, selecting, and working with quality direct support staff and to embrace more fully the creation of person-centered plans and the implementation of these plans for a wholistic healthy live. Listen to and interact with one person’s story about the success of this transitional process as well as the role and support of his guardian and the facilitation of his support team coordinator.

#5 Positive Behavior Support Training Curriculum: Overview and Guide for Successful Implementation

David Rotholz, PhD; Dennis Reid, PhD

This workshop will be provided by the senior author and senior editor of the new AAMR Positive Behavior Support Training Curriculum. The presenters, both of whom were key participants in developing and implementing this training curriculum, will provide information from the source on what the curriculum includes and how to plan for its successful implementation. Participants will have the opportunity to get answers to questions about implementing this important training curriculum at their own agencies.

Room: 413

9:00 am–12:00 noon

#6 The Rewards of Social Capital: Health, Happiness and Relationships

Sheri Keith; Margaret Dominguez

Social capital refers to the connection among individuals through social networks. In the first section of this workshop, we will explore the research and its conclusions regarding the connections between social capital and mental and physical health. In the second section we will discover ways in which social capital can be increased, not only for the people we support, but also for ourselves.

Room: 405

AFTERNOON WORKSHOPS

1:00 pm–4:00 pm

#7 Working for a Living: The Role of Work in the Healthy Lives of People With Disabilities

Susan Foley, PhD

This presentation will argue that work is a vital aspect of health. People with disabilities clearly express the desire to work, connect it to functioning, and describe its importance to their well-being. Data from several qualitative research projects will highlight how people with disabilities define the role of work in their lives. Efforts to define health should include employment as a key component.

Room: 401

1:00 pm–4:00 pm

#8 Leadership: A Quest for Quality

John Rose; Margaret (Peggy) Gould

Effective leadership enhances the capabilities of employees, provides assurances to stakeholders, and sets high expectations for performance and quality improvement. It builds loyalty and teamwork, and encourages appropriate risk taking. Effective leadership includes mechanisms for leaders to conduct self-assessment and personal growth. An organization's senior leaders need to set direction and create a customer focus, clear and visible values and high expectations. The leader needs to ensure the creation of strategies, systems and methods for achieving excellence, stimulating innovation and building knowledge and capabilities. This session is designed to facilitate communication between agency leaders and to focus on how leaders develop quality within their agencies, in order to meet today's service delivery demands.

Room: 402

1:00 pm–4:00 pm

#9 Preference and Reinforcer Assessment in Individuals With Special Needs

Richard Graff

The topic of identifying preferences in individuals with special needs has received much attention recently. Although there is empirical evidence that systematic preference assessments identify reinforcers more effectively than other methods, few parents and professionals are familiar with these techniques. This workshop presents a practitioner's guide to conducting systematic preference assessments. Participants will be taught several different methods to accurately assess preferences; assessment protocols, data sheets, and scoring instructions have been included for each assessment.

Room: 403

1:00 pm–4:00 pm

#10 Promoting Good Health

Ginny Focht-New; Patty Graves, RN, CDDN; Jack Toomey, RN; Aimee Grev, RN

This workshop focuses on developing a plan for good health that can be used by caregivers on a day-to-day basis. Health Promotion Plan is used to increase positive health outcomes by addressing individual diagnoses. It is easily integrated into an annual plan. This workshop requires active participation by those in attendance.

Room: 405

1:00 pm–4:00 pm

#11 The Supports Intensity Scale

James Thompson, PhD; Carolyn Hughes, PhD; Marc Tassé, PhD; Michael Weymeyer, PhD; Robert Schalock, PhD; Brian Bryant, PhD; David Rotholz, PhD; Edward Campbell, PhD; Wayne Silverman, PhD; Ellis (Pat) Craig, PhD

The Supports Intensity Scale (SIS) is a new assessment tool published by AAMR that provides a means to obtain a standardized measure an individual's support needs. The SIS and its accompanying manual will be in print and on sale at the convention. One of the main goals of this workshop is to introduce this product to the AAMR membership and the field. In this pre-conference workshop we will teach people how to use the SIS writing a process that involves determining support needs, developing plans that address support needs, and monitoring outcomes.

Room: 413

1:00 pm–4:00 pm

#12 Transitioning: Individual and Community

Claus Sproll; David Schwartz, PhD; Sabine Otto

Sharing experiences in transitioning will be done on real life situations by looking at various life transitions in Camphill community settings—both educational and life sharing—with children, youth and adults. The approach to transitioning in a Camphill community is guided by the assumption that each individual goes through transitions and in those needs support and guidance.

For more than three decades...

The Council on Quality and Leadership has set standards...

changed society's vision...

improved the lives of thousands.

Our focus on the innovative concepts of social capital, community quality and person-centered service has enhanced not only the lives of those we serve, but our own lives as well.

As quiet leaders, we continue to move forward, enabling those we serve to live healthier, more fulfilled lives, in turn creating healthier, inclusive communities.

The Council and Jim Gardner, president and CEO of The Council and this year's recipient of the AAMR Leadership Award, invite you to join us in making a difference one life at a time.

The Council's Fall 2004 Leadership Conference will be held October 19-20, 2004 in Atlantic City, New Jersey.

AAMR's Exhibit Show & Interactive Poster Presentations

Exhibit Hall, Franklin Hall, 4th Floor
Philadelphia Marriott Downtown

This year for the first time, you can attend Interactive Poster Presentations and visit the Exhibits all in one convenient location. Interactive Poster Presentations will be located around the Exhibit Hall on a variety of topics. (See page 27 for a complete list of Interactive Poster Presentations.) Here you will have a chance to talk one-on-one with the researchers, policy leaders, and service providers as they present their new and important issues.

AAMR's Exhibit Show is simply the most exciting and comprehensive exhibit show in the field of mental retardation. Exhibitors include publishing houses, vehicle manufacturers, travel agencies, testing and diagnostic service companies, teaching aids, computer software, and residential facilities, pharmaceutical companies, and technology companies all offering the latest products and services of interest to professionals in the field.

Come support AAMR's Exhibitors and see the newest and the best products and services in the field! And don't forget the Grand Prize Drawing.

The Exhibit Hall will include a Silent Auction, a 50/50 Raffle, the AAMR Marketplace, a Hospitality Desk, and Daily Door Prizes!

Admission to the Exhibit Hall is free to all registered attendees. The AAMR Exhibit Show is located on the 4th floor in Franklin Hall of the Philadelphia Marriott Downtown.
